

FEDERAL ISSUES

- POLICY STATEMENT -

The Grange came into being over one hundred fifty (150) years ago. Soon it engaged in legislation as issues facing rural America came to the forefront, such as malpractice by railroads, the trusts, and the birth of the Extension Service and the formation of the Department of Agriculture.

Food and toy safety, debt reduction, health programs, Social Security, the environment, and other issues continue to attract the attention of the Grange. The Grange, standing on its solid foundation built more than a century ago with its strong family and moral values, can influence solutions to these problems in a positive way.

Crime, terrorism, undocumented immigration, and cessation of the “automatic granting of citizenship” to any child born to foreign nationals while touring/visiting the United States and national safety are of great concern to American citizens. The illegal use of drugs and human trafficking continue their adverse effects on society. Violence has entered the educational system, and penalties cannot be agreed upon. The cost of operating the penal system, homeland security and legal fees are skyrocketing. These issues present challenges to Congress, and the Grange fully supports enforcement of current laws and/or reforms, which are consistent with Grange policies.

Job growth is needed to enable American workers to be competitive with other major industrial powers. A modern, well-kept, and safe transportation system is essential to agriculture as well as the total economic system. The Grange believes in and strongly supports the dedicated highway fund. These funds should be protected against any “raiding” for budget balancing purposes. Attention to local roads and bridges is strongly supported by the New York State Grange.

The Grange also supports the Veteran’s Employment Assistance Act and other Veterans’ programs; and seeks solutions to address the problems within the Veterans Administration.

Social Security and Medicare are not entitlement programs and are especially important. It is critical that they be protected. For many of its recipients, it is their sole source of income and/or medical insurance.

Unfunded mandates issued by judicial proclamations, executive orders and legislative action must be curtailed.

The Grange understands the importance of protecting private lands from being taken over by eminent domain for the sole purpose of economic development.

The Grange supports the English language as the official language of the United States. Significant action needs to be taken to curtail robot call intrusions.

The New York State Grange and its local units will continue to collaborate with our Congressional delegation to speak for the good of rural America.
